

DAMAGING CASE
AGAINST GRUBER.*Circumstances Point to German Youth as Murderer of Ringle.*IS HELD IN COUNTY JAIL*Arrest Was Made Late Saturday Following Investigation by County Detectives—May Not Be Tried at Coming Term of Court.

A short, meek, red-headed German boy today occupies Cell No. 5 at the county jail in Uniontown charged with the murder of Frank Ringle at Point Marion on August 18. Though he denies all knowledge of the crime, and has attempted to explain all of the premises gathered by the county authorities, a chain of circumstantial evidence is being placed together, slowly but surely, that may lead him to the gallows. He is Louis Gruber, handy man about the garage where Ringle met his death.

The body of the murdered man was discovered Saturday by William Harvey, Jr., who suspected that Ringle had met with foul play and started an investigation. The first real intimation of murder was discovered when the room of Gruber employed about the automobile garage of William I. Harvey was visited. On the floor, walls and furniture, blood was in evidence, which finally led to a spot under the building where the body was found. Corporal Harry J. Bell was at once notified, as were the County Detectives who hurried to the scene in an automobile.

Detective McElbeth at once searched the room from which the trail had led and found a two-foot iron bar under the bed, covered with blood. On one end of it were matted pieces of human hair and strands of gray hair, corresponding to that of Ringle. The red clothing looked as if the body had been placed on the cot after the man had been struck down, as the sheets were soaked with blood. Since Gruber mysteriously disappeared after Ringle was missed the boy's room had not been entered until Harvey looked into it Saturday. Suspicion was at once aroused and Detective McElbeth and McLaughlin and Constable Milt Morris started for Martin, where they heard he had gone. However, Constable E. E. LaFoe and William Harvey, Jr., had started for the place before them, and on approaching the Shutzinger house, where Gruber's aunt lived, they saw him standing in the door. He stepped from view, but appeared in a few minutes and inquired who they were looking for. They asked him to accompany them, which he did without resistance. They later met the detectives and turned the man over to their charge.

McElbeth returned to the Shutzinger home and questioned them in regard to $50 in money and a gold watch which had disappeared from Ringle's body. Gruber's aunt stated she knew nothing about the money but the boy had a gold watch. A search of the house resulted in finding the time piece under some clothing in a barrel. It was taken to Point Marion and identified by Mrs. Ringle as her husband's property.

Information against Gruber, charging murder was made before Judge John DeGardyn, and after a preliminary hearing, he was bound over to court.

Coroner Bell held a post mortem examination and found Ringle had sustained a fracture of the skull, evidently having been struck a powerful blow on the left side of the head. A jury was empaneled and required but two minutes in which to agree on a verdict, recommending that Gruber be held for the September Grand Jury. As there were no witnesses against the prisoner amongst the crowd that had assembled, McElbeth thought best to remove the prisoner to the jail at once, and he was brought to Uniontown about 9:30 that evening.

Gruber is 18 years old. He says that he has been in this country 18 months, coming here from Germany. His aunt admitted yesterday that he had served four years in a reform school in that country for killing a man in Falkburg. The particulars of the case were not known to her. He is short and stout, and his head is topped with a mass of bright red hair. He walks with a quick, short step, and speaks rather slowly, not having become thoroughly familiar with the English language. While talking to a Courier reporter yesterday afternoon he attempted to explain all of the damaging points against him. The blood in the room had come from his nose which he said bled profusely every night. When asked if it oozed out the walls he replied in the affirmative. He said that there were several iron bars in his room, which he had used to pull the cover over a box. He denied that Ringle came to his room or that he

Beverly Silent

United Press Telegram.
BEVERLY, Aug. 28.—Efforts to "smoke out" an expression from President Taft regarding Colonel Roosevelt's western trip and the enthusiasm accompanying it has failed. The President takes the position that it is none of his affair and it is doubtful whether he is reading the accounts of the trip.

Those surrounding President Taft are manifestly disturbed and are privately complaining that "Roosevelt talks too much as if he were still President."

They assert that nobody can figure a good reason for the trip unless it is undertaken to launch a boom in 1912 and keep the Colonel in the public eye.

The fact that 55 correspondents, representing nearly every big city, accompany Roosevelt, while only the press associations and one newspaper had a representative on President Taft's last trip.

Taft's friends are complaining about the manner the metropolitan press handled the President's travels lately. Only three of them displayed it on their first page and only two carried it in full.

He reviewed a parade of the Spanish War Veterans and civic organizations. At noon he was the guest of honor at an old fashioned "chuck wagon" dinner under the auspices of the Press Club.

At 2:30 (Mountain Time) the Colonel addressed a throng at the auditorium. He went then to the Capitol and addressed the legislators and then returned to the auditorium at 4:30 and spoke to the war veterans. He will attend the Live Stock banquet tonight.

TOKIO, Aug. 28.—The formal promulgation of the treaty annexing Korea was made today. Dispatches from Seoul say the formal annexation occasioned no disturbance, probably due to the extensive preparations made by Japan to insure order.

It is believed Japan will maintain a strong military force for several years in order to check the younger part of the population, which has always been opposed to annexation, from attempting the assassination of other prominent officials.

NO CHANCE FOR COMMISSION PLAN.*Attorney E. C. Higbee Says Amendment to Constitution Necessary.*THIRD CLASS CITY BEST NOW*At Present There is No Authority for Government by Commission in Pennsylvania Municipalities—Form Not Representative

According to Attorney E. C. Higbee there is no chance of government by commission for Conneltsville in the near future. Only by an amendment to the State Constitution can the Legislature provide for that style of government, he says. For that reason, Mr. Higbee suggests that immediate action be taken looking towards Conneltsville becoming a city of the third class.

Mr. Higbee is not so sure that the courts of the State would interpret commission government, a representative form of municipal operation. He further insists that the present form to Pennsylvania is the best, if properly administered.

In order to become effective by 1911 Mr. Higbee says it is necessary for Conneltsville to take steps at once looking to becoming a city of the third class. If the matter is deferred, the change in government might be delayed until the municipal elections of 1913. It is not unlikely that the matter may come up at the November election. Uniontown has just discovered that it may be large enough to become a third class city, a subject which has been under consideration in Conneltsville for months past.

Crippen and Girl are Arraigned in London Court

United Press Telegram.
LONDON, Aug. 28.—Dr. Harvey Lawley Crippen and Miss Ethel Clara Lenoire were today formally charged with the murder of Belle Elmore, Crippen's actress wife. They were arraigned in the Bow street police station. Miss Lenoire was also charged with assisting, maintaining and harboring Crippen.

Both seemed cheerful. They were remanded until September 6. Only a few were allowed in the court room. Thousands waited outside, and attempted to rush the guards surrounding the prisoners when they entered the court building.

"I can't stand the horror which I have undergone every night. I have made up my mind to jump overboard tonight. I can see nothing ahead of me. My money is exhausted. I know I have spoiled your life but hope some day you can forgive me. My last words are love."

This was the writing on one of Crippen's business cards found when the doctor was arrested, according to the testimony of Inspector Dew today.

Dew said at about 11 he learned of Crippen's intention to suicide he was handcuffed.

The prosecution announced that Miss Lenoire would be tried only on charges of being an accessory to the crime.

Returning to jail, Miss Lenoire refused an interview to her father unless he promised to inquire only for her health. The father finally agreed and saw the girl for a few minutes. She was plainly agitated.

Arison Makes
Defense in Suit
Over Horse Trade

Special to The Courier.
UNIONTOWN, Aug. 28.—An affidavit of defense was filed here today in the case of A. H. Stahlbender, of Conneltsville, against W. A. Arison of Smithfield. Arison's attorneys are Gans and Jones.

It claims that when the case comes to trial he will be able to prove that the pony, which was the cause of all the trouble, was and is his property. On August 5th he states that William Campbell representing Clinton Sneak of Conneltsville rode into Smithfield to sell his horse was on foot, with the condition that Campbell's animal was to be unable to make a sale, and as the horse could not carry him back to Conneltsville, Arison loaned him a pony, which was to be returned. The following day, as he had not heard from Campbell, he went to Conneltsville and on leaving his animal in Mabelner's stable took him out and left.

Shortly after this, residents living along Main street were surprised to see Mabelner, rushing wildly down the hill, minus coat and hat. The chase ended in Uniontown for the day, and Arison was arrested at Fairchance the next day.

River Lowest Ever and Still Going Down

From all appearances the Yough is going to establish another record this summer. According to the report at the West Penn office this morning, the water has reached the lowest stage ever recorded by the gauge, which was installed on the bridge two years ago this coming September.

It will be remembered that two years ago the stream appeared to have reached the limit in dryness. However, at that time there was a good sized stream flowing through the mill race of the Kolt-Louis flour mill. Yesterday the water almost ceased to flow through this thereby making another record. On Saturday the reading 0.53 Sunday morning it had dropped to 0.15 and by this morning was down to 0.12. It is still going down.

ENDOW BAND IF STAND IS ERECTED.*It is Said Steps Will be Taken to Enlarge the Organization.*SECURE COMPETENT DIRECTOR*Beligians of the County, Experts on the Reed Instruments, Would Be Interested in the Movement—Matter is up to School Board.

If the School Board should happen to approve the proposition to erect a band stand on the school grounds at the corner of Carnegie and Library avenues it is stated on good authority that steps will be taken to raise an endowment fund for the benefit of the organization; proceeds of which will go towards the employment of an experienced director.

That the Conneltsville Military Band is not given the support in the community which it deserves is the statement of one man who is interested in the proposed endowment. The idea is to enlarge the organization and make it as famous throughout Western Pennsylvania as Nivella's Eighteenth Regiment band of Pittsburgh.

Should these plans not gain acceptance it is said there will be steps taken to enlist more players. The local band is well supplied with performers on the brass instruments but lacks players on the reeds. To this end, it is said efforts will be made to interest some of the Belgians of the county; men who are experts with the clarinets and other reed instruments, but not familiar with brass music makers.

Attorney E. C. Higbee is interested in the movement to some extent. As one of the solicitors of the School Board he has insisted that the title of the board to its property would not be endangered by granting permission to erect the band stand. Both Higbee and Attorney Matthews have strongly urged that this step be taken by the board, but their arguments have not been entirely successful. Several members of the board have apparently determined not to accept the legal version of such action which the solicitors have propounded.

It is stated that an endowment fund of $1,000 a year would be sufficient not only to secure the services of a competent director, but to purchase music as well. If the creation of the band stand can be assured steps will immediately be taken, it is said, looking towards the creation of an endowment fund.

The Conneltsville Military Band has always enjoyed the reputation of being a good one. What better advertisement can a town have than a splendid band? And what is more enjoyable for its citizens than band concerts on summer evenings. I would gladly contribute $10 annually for the support of the organization; and it would be an easy matter to find 99 others to do the same, is the statement made by one man today.

The proposition to employ a professional director in no way reflects upon Chief Musician J. W. Buttermore under whose charge the band has prospered and continued as a first class organization. Mr. Buttermore, it is said, would be one of the first to welcome such outside assistance.

BLAUCH-BLOUGH.

Reunion Will Be Held at Somerset on September First.

The third annual reunion of the Blauch-Blauch families will be held Thursday, September 1, at Edgewood Grove, Somerset. The Blauch family is well known in and around Connelville. Among the members located here are Mrs. J. T. Hietzel and Mrs. H. O. McKett of the West Side, their maiden name being Blauch. The committee on arrangements for the reunion have about completed arrangements and it is most delightful time anticipated.

The officers of the association are: President D. B. Blauch of Johnstown; Vice Presidents, J. J. Blauch of Bertha; James Blauch of Somerset; Rev. J. J. Blough of Somerset; Rev. Jerome Blough of Hopedale; Christ B. Blough of Johnstown; and Scott Dillbert of Johnstown; Secretary Tillman K. Sawyer of Johnstown; Assistant Secretary Rufus B. Blauch of Blauvelt; Nelsi, Treasurer A. W. Blauch of Johnstown; Director of Music C. M. Blough of Johnstown. The name of the family was changed to suit the locality in which they lived, as no particular attention to the spelling was given by the early settlers to preserve the original name, and as the result it is spelled Blauch, Blough, and Blouch, as the latter moved there.

But all are traced back to the original stem of Blauch as it is written by the two original ones on the emigrant records now in the State Library at Harrisburg. The Daily Democrat of Johnstown devotes over a page to the history and pictures of many of the prominent members of the family.

MATTHEWS REUNION

Was Held at Shady Grove Park Last Thursday.

About 400 persons were present at the third annual reunion of the Matthews family held Thursday at Shady Grove Park. The greater part of the day was spent in renewing old acquaintances and relating many pleasant reminiscences of their young days. The Matthews reunions are important events to the members of the family as it brings together many of the members who see each other only at this occasion.

Glen Matthews in whose memory the reunions are held came from Connelville to this country in 1710 and married Elizabeth Healy who came from Ireland about the same time. To the union was born four daughters and four sons, Jennie, Margaret, Hetty, Martha, James, John, Thomas and William. At noon an elaborate dinner was served and during the afternoon the following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Thomas Matthews of Uniontown; First Vice President, Thomas H. Matthews of Perry; Second Vice President, George H. Matthews of Uniontown; Secretary, Elizabeth Conway of Connelville; Assistant Secretary, Rayburn Matthews, Jr., of Mt. Pleasant; Music and dancing were among the principal amusements of the day. The latter amusement was indulged in until 11:30 o'clock. The date for the next reunion was not set.

FOOLISH WASTE.

You See It Going On All Around You Every Day.

If a man, on a desert island, hoping to be picked up by some passing vessel, knew that he had food to sustain life only for a short time, wouldn't he be foolish to waste anything? He certainly would. Yet many men, here in Connelville, knowing that their earning power must have a limit and that the time will come when their income will cease, but their expenses go right on, waste money every day. Isn't that equally foolish? Wouldn't it be better to put something away for old age in The First National Bank of Connelville, where savings are absolutely safe and earn 4% interest? One dollar opens an account.

Your Valuables Safeguarded By Renting a Safe Deposit Box in the fire and burglar proof vault of the Citizens National Bank you are absolutely protected against loss by either fire or theft. The charge is quite reasonable—only $2.00 and up per year. Citizens National Bank, Connelville, Pa.

HELPING HUMANITY.

Father and Son Viewed Conditions From Opposite Standpoints.

Twenty years ago, says the Chicago Advance, a discouraged young doctor in a large city was visited once by his old father, who came up from a rural district to look after his boy.

"Well, son," he said, "how are you getting along?"

"I'm not getting along at all," was the disheartened reply. "I'm not doing a thing."

The old man's countenance fell, but he spoke of courage and patience and perseverance. Later in the day he went with his son to the free dispensary, where the young doctor had an unsanitary position and where he spent an hour or more every day. The father sat by, a silent but intensely interested spectator, while twenty-five poor unfortunate received help. The doctor forgot his visitor while he bent his skilled energies to the task, but hardly had the door closed on the last patient when the old man burst forth:

"I thought you told me that you were not doing anything! Why, if I had helped twenty-five people in a month as much as you have in one morning I would thank God my life counted for something."

"There isn't any money in it, though," explained the son, somewhat ashamed. "Money!" the old man shouted, still scornfully. "Money! What is money in comparison with being of use to your fellow men? Never mind about money. You go right along at this work every day. I'll go back to the farm and gladly earn money enough to support you as long as I live—yes, and sleep sound every night with the thought that I have helped you to help your fellow men."

SHREWD VICTOR HUGO.

Quiet Way in Which He Bullied the Theatrical Managers.

Here are the methods which Dumas the elder and Victor Hugo employed when they had a new play to offer to the theatre. Dumas would write to the director of the Porte St. Martin:

My Dear Friend—I shall bring you on Monday a play in five acts and five scenes. It is called 'The Count of Monte-Cristo.' It is a masterpiece. It is a masterpiece. It is a masterpiece.

Then Victor Hugo would appear and shyly draw a manuscript out of his pocket. He would agree to everything. The stock company would play his piece admirably, since all he wanted was a good ensemble; no new decorations would be needed nor any change at all.

So the piece would be read, and as the roles were distributed Hugo would say musically, "Dear, how dear Frederick would be in that part!" "That is true," Hugo would murmur, and a few days after he would announce that Frederick was engaged. Hugo would then renege on this promise and the play would be a failure.

Aids Nature

The great success of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in curing weak stomachs, wasted bodies, weak lungs, and obstinate and lingering coughs, is based on the recognition of the fundamental truth that "Golden Medical Discovery" supplies Nature with body-building, tissue-repairing, muscle-making materials, in condensed and concentrated form. With this help Nature supplies the necessary strength to the stomach to digest food, build up the body and thereby throw off lingering obstinate coughs. The "Discovery" re-establishes the digestive and nutritive organs in sound health, purifies and enriches the blood, and nourishes the nerves—in short establishes sound vigorous health.

If your dealer offers something "just as good," it is probably better FOR HIM... it may be better. But you are thinking of the cure not the profit, so there's nothing "just as good" for you. Say so.

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, in Plain English; or, Medicine Simplified, 1008 pages, over 700 illustrations, newly revised up-to-date Edition; paper-bound, sent for 21 one-cent stamps, to cover cost of mailing only. Cloth-bound, 31 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

SUNDAY STROLL

Of Cows on Francis Avenue Is Cut Short by Police.

Cows seem to take after the fashion of man in at least one way, that of taking a stroll on Sunday. Twice yesterday the police were notified that the animals were wandering about the streets and alleys in the vicinity of Francis Avenue. There first trip was without results as the owners put in an appearance shortly before their arrival and drove the cows home.

The second time they caught the animals in the act, and locked them up in the stable of Joe Mervin. The owners called this morning and secured the release of the scrollers by paying their board bills.

HEINZE THREATENED BY WOMAN'S SUIT

FOR $25,000.00.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—The announcement of the engagement of Fritz Augustus Heinze, Montana, copper magnate and New York banker, to Bernice Henderson, an actress in "A Fool There Was" company, has aroused the ire of Lillian Hobart French, who asserts that she was very intimate with the millionaire for two years. Mrs. French has notified her lawyers to commence suit against Heinze for the recovery of some very valuable stock in a mining company which she alleges was worth $25,000. She says that Heinze gave her the stock and that she loaned it to him during the panic of 1907 in an effort to save him from ruin. She also connects Heinze with the operations of the stock market, and the operations of Heinze in an effort to make profits out of a stock deal just before the panic. Mrs. French has exhibited a number of endorsing letters alleged to have been written by Heinze to her as evidence that he is under certain obligations to her.

AFTER SUFFERING ONE YEAR

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Milwaukee, Wis.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has made me a well woman, and I would like to tell the whole world of it. I suffered from female troubles and fearful pains in my back. I had the best doctors and they all decided that I had a tumor in addition to my female trouble, and advised an operation. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me a well woman and I have no more backache. I hope I can help others by telling them what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Mrs. Anna Lutz, 338 First St., Milwaukee, Wis.

The above is only one of the thousands of grateful letters which are constantly being received by the Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn, Mass., which prove beyond a doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, actually does cure these obstinate diseases of women after all other means have failed, and that every such suffering woman owes it to herself to at least give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial before submitting to an operation, or giving up hope of recovery.

Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health and her advice is free.

Remember the Children and Insist on "Holeproof"

When anyone tells you that some other hose are as good as "Holeproof"—remember the children.

They are out all day playing just as hard as they can—often scraping around on their knees. They are bound to have fun and simply can't help wearing holes in their stockings.

If you take common hosiery you must spend hours darning them every week. If you insist on "Holeproof" you will have no darning for six months. Every box has a written guarantee under which you receive new hosiery absolutely free if any holes appear in the first lot within six months.

Holeproof Hosiery FOR MEN WOMEN AND CHILDREN

"Holeproof" is the first hosiery ever sold under a guarantee of six months. But behind this guarantee is 31 years of experience in making hosiery. So while others have imitated the guarantee they have never been able to equal the quality.

The makers pay 63 cents a pound for the strongest and softest Egyptian and Sea Island cotton the market affords. Yet common hosiery is made from cotton at 12 cents a pound.

Men's hose come in eleven colors, women's in six and children's in two. Priced from $1.50 to $3 a box of six pairs. Come and see them today—learn how soft, smooth and comfortable they are.

THE POINT MARION MURDER
MYSTERY CLEARING UP.

The Point Marion murder mystery has been pretty promptly and thoroughly cleared up and the alleged murderer is lodged in the Fayette county jail.

The evidence against him is circumstantial, but if our news accounts are confirmed by the testimony of witnesses in court, of which there seems to be no reasonable doubt, it is overwhelming.

While disclosing any purpose of trying the accused in the columns of a newspaper, it is evident that he will be hard put to explain away the damning evidence which hedges him about.

His every action since the murder is that of a guilty man. His abandonment of his bloodstained room and his flight from the town were sufficient to turn the finger of suspicion upon him, but his brazen claim to the dead man's watch is a strong confirmation of this suspicion.

The rifling of the dead man's pockets is sufficient evidence that robbery was the incentive to murder.
A murder of this character is by legal presumption a deliberate and willful murder, the punishment of which is death.

Fayette county's scaffold is not of ten used, but there will be need of it unless Louis Lumber can explain away a mountain of incriminating circumstances.

CHAIRMAN CARR'S
CALL TO DEMOCRACY.
The new chairman of the Fayette County Democratic Committee is young and fair and optimistic. It is not at all strange, therefore, that his maiden message to the party should be urgent and hopeful.

Chairman Carr is an orator. It runs in the family. His trumpet call is check full of keynotes. He tells us that he represents the People's Cause;
that Democracy will have a "Swamp Triumph" that he stands for Rural Opportunity; that he demands "Equal Rights for all and Special Privileges for none"; that his party makes no war upon the rich, but defends the poor; and in conclusion he calls upon every Democrat to be an Apostle of the Creed and to go out into the highways and byways and French the World.

The call will fall upon deaf ears
Most Fayette county Democrats know very little about modern Democracy and care less. They couldn't preach it very well if they would, and they wouldn't if they could. Put into practice, just a few of the avowed policies would secure the smoke from the atmosphere of the Conneltsville "Coke region and recruit an overwhelming
Army of Unemployed.

After this cruel campaign is over,
it is probable that there will be a large assortment of glittering Bryanisms for sale at cut rates.

WILL WINK
THE OTHER EYE.

"With the consent of the Board of Health," the Uniontown School Board has postponed the enforcement of compulsory vaccination until cooler weather.

The postponement is warranted, not only by meteorological conditions, but also by the fact that there is no smallpox on sight.

The law is very positive on this point, and the Uniontown health authorities will probably not undertake to defy it, but they will probably wink the other eye.

DRAGGING GOD
INTO POLITICS.

The Uniontown Genius, pseudo Democratic organ, bids "the friends of the People" "take courage, bearing in mind that behind the principles of Bryan and Roosevelt stands God; and that one with God on his side is a majority. And (the...)

The Genius appears to be for God, but as between Bryan and Roosevelt it leaves us in painful doubt. We do not recall that it supported Roosevelt when he ran for President, or that it was an ardent admirer of his politics

when he was President. The Genius makes it harder for us to understand by uttering this poetical platitude:
Truth forever on the scaffold;
Wrong forever on the throne.
But that scaffold rules the future,
And behind the dim unknown,
Standeth God within the shadow,
Keeping watch above his own.
The logical inference is that Truth was on the scaffold and was very much beheaded or strangled during the seven years of Teddy, but inasmuch as the country wanted fat the people didn't trouble themselves concerning Democracy or Democratic ille-gories.

Nor are they likely to do so now.

JOHN W. BENNETT IS BADLY INJURED.

One of East Huntingdon Road Supervisors in Disastrous Smashup.

SCHOOL BOARD HOLDS MEETING

Upper Tyrone District's All Attend. Mendon Grange Picnic Broke All Previous Records, 1,000 Present. Scottdale Men Take Southern Trip.

Special to The Courier

SCOTTDALE, Aug. 29.—John W. Bennett, one of the Board of Road Supervisors of East Huntingdon township, was seriously and perhaps fatally injured in a runaway accident that occurred near his home, while he was driving along one side of the road. The horse he was driving took fright and ran into a ditch throwing Mr. Bennett out of the buggy, the full breaking severity of Mr. Bennett's ribs and his collar bone and inflicting other injuries, some of them it is feared fatal internally. The horse was also badly hurt in the accident, a shaft of the buggy breaking and penetrating the horse's body for several inches. Mr. Bennett is said to be now resting in a plaster of Paris cast, and his recovery will be a tedious one probably.

Had a Big Picnic.
The 22nd annual picnic held by Mendon Grange and which took place in J. H. Bryan's grove near Ruffsdale drew the biggest crowd Saturday that has ever attended one of these famous country outings since it has been held. Over 3,000 people assembled at the grove from all parts of Westmoreland and Fayette counties, many of them driving a dozen or more miles. Hundreds of buggies and wagons and many automobiles were all about the picnic grounds. The West Penn carried hundreds of people picnic bound, and these got out from Ruffsdale to the grove by walking or going in wagons or autos that were kept busy all day making the round trip. The principal speaker of the day was Prof. Byron W. King, of Pittsburgh, a native of this section, who gave some splendid addresses, the people having him out for three speeches that were heartily applauded. Rev. W. H. Guyer of Altoona, Perry A. Shamer of Pittsburgh and A. F. Landis of Jeannette were other speakers, that received flattering applause.

School Board Meeting.
The Upper Tyrone Township School Board met at South Everson on Saturday afternoon with Messrs. King, Brooks, Keller, Hixson, Halsey and Hitt, all members present. It was reported that every school property in the township had been carefully inspected and everything had been put in sanitary shape for the opening of school today. Monthly inspection will be made of all the schools and two men have been employed to see that they are kept in sanitary condition. The teachers were present and all were given their first lesson in pennmanship under President P. O. Peterson of the Peterson Business College of Scottsdale. Messrs. King and Hixson were appointed a committee to visit the schools during the first month, and Secretary King was instructed to meet with the representatives of other boards employing Prof. Peterson in order to arrange a schedule for his giving the instructions in writing to the teachers during the term. Miss Minnie Leichter of Owsandale was elected to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Miss Clara Kane who goes to the Scottsdale schools, while Miss Mae Evans of Scottsdale was elected sub teacher in place of Miss Leichter.

Are Going South.
Samuel E. Brown of Scottsdale Furnace, I. P. Sheaffer, the painter, James E. Dickenhoff of the U. S. East Iron Pipe & Foundry Company, and J. E. Brown have left for a month's visit to Hellenes, Va. They ordered The Courier to be sent to them during their stay to keep up with the home news.

Returned From the West.
Mr. and Mrs. Jesse A. Stauffer of Arthur avenue, have arrived home from a western trip of a month's duration which they were in several States. The principal stop was in Moline, Ill., where Mr. Stauffer has a brother living. The weather was very warm during the couple's trip, and much of their travel was in an automobile, about 1,500 miles being driven off.

At Mt. Pleasant.
Hubert C. Eicher of Chestnut street spent Saturday in Mt. Pleasant township where he is principal of the Pleasant township High School. President P. O. Peterson was in company with Mr. Eicher and gave the teachers of Mt. Pleasant a lesson in the instruction of writing. The Peterson course has been adopted there and strikes a blow at the vertical writing fad, which has fallen under ban of disapproval. Its characteristics, slanted styles, bringing its own doom. Mr. Peterson's work was taken up with interest, and the first lesson was mainly given on the position that the writers should assume, and a study of the capabilities of pupils of various ages and practices. The old style copy book is done away with and the teachers make the new copies.

A Quiet Day.
There was little doing on the streets Saturday, although it was pay day for the mills, the most of the people having gone to the picnic at Ruffsdale. There was a big crowd on the streets

Tom Watson Charges That Congressman Hardwick Plans His Death.
Thomson, Ga., Aug. 29.—The climax of the fight which Thomas E. Watson, once candidate for president on the Populist ticket, has been making on Congressman Hardwick came when he made the charge that Hardwick is planning his assassination in the belief that Hoke Smith after he is inaugurated governor will pardon him as Governor Patterson pardoned the player of Senator Curmack in Tennessee.

"Hardwick purposes to take me at a disadvantage some day when I am not prepared for him, get the drop on me with a pistol or gun and shoot me," says Watson. "My blood is not drawn and my life is worth something to my family and my country."

SMALL FREIGHT WRECK AT ORIENTAL SIDING

Freight Train Breaks in Two and Runs Together Saturday Night.

Special to The Courier.
OLIPHANT FURNACE, Aug. 29.—Two cars were destroyed and traffic on the fairmont branch of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad delayed nearly three hours Saturday night by a smashup at Oriental siding. The accident occurred at 9:30.

The train was a double header in starting the train broke in two. The rear section, propelled by a pusher, crashed into the front end. Two box cars were projected high into the air and fell over with a crash. No one was injured. The wreck train from Connelville was sent to the scene and had the track cleared for traffic by midnight.

Calumny and Praise For Gore.
Chicago Aug. 29.—Thomas B. Gore, the blind senator from Oklahoma, has paid $3,000 for publicly charging fraud in Indian land deals in Oklahoma. He has ended calumny from the men he has accused and may be made to suffer in his political fortunes. In return he has received personal commendation from people in every state in the Union, as many as 125 letters praising him for his action reaching him in one day. This was stated by Senator Gore while here.

Hangs Himself in Cell.
MONESSEN, Pa., Aug. 29.—Deponent over losses sustained in the San Francisco earthquake, George W. Cunningham, aged 39, committed suicide in the police station here yesterday.

ANNIE TOOTED HER HORN FOR HECLA.

Mary Then Batted It Over Her Rival's Head.

FENCE RAILS WERE ALSO USED

Physician's Attention Is Necessary and Parties Go To Law Over the Riot—Too Much Baseball For Both the Girls.

ME, PLEASANT, Pa., Aug. 29.—When Annie Plasky tooted her horn and rooted for the Hecla baseball team at Standard the other day, Mary Sherauski, a fair dancin' girl who favored the Standard club, took the horn from the Hecla girl and rained on her rival's head with a heavy oak fence rail seriously injuring her.

Annie Plasky accompanied the Hecla club of the Northern Pick Baseball League to Standard and before the trouble started she had been rooting hard for them as they were then in the lead. Mary Sherauski, who was a loyal supporter of the Standard team, couldn't stand by and hear the long blasts which Annie was blowing from the horn, so she grabbed the horn from her and trampled on it. This caused a fight and for several seconds Annie and Mary mixed it up a bit. Mary succeeded in getting a heavy oak fence rail and before the crowd could interfere she had brought it down upon Annie's head. A gash several inches long was made in the head of the Hecla girl. Dr. Walker of Hecla attended the girl who lay unconscious for several hours. In the meantime Mary Sherauski had betook herself to her home fearful lest she had seriously injured her rival.

Friends of Miss Plasky took the matter in hand and secured a warrant for the arrest of the Standard girl. The warrant was served and Saturday the case was tried before Justice of the Peace J. W. Hunter. Miss Sherauski pleaded guilty and was forced to pay $15 to the girl whom she wounded, $10 to a physician, and the costs, or a total of $37.50. The girl's relatives settled all of the bills. Dr. J. W. Shier of this place examined the gash on the girl's head and said that unless the wound had the very best attention blood poison would set in. This would greatly endanger the girl's life.

A quietest of well known young men from near this place were recently granted the privilege of living in the pretty summer cottage near Indian Head and owned by the Witts. The kindness of the owner was abused by the young men and while Mrs. Elizabeth Witt, the aged owner of the cottage lay dying in Mt. Pleasant, the young men almost wrecked the building. Shrubbery was destroyed, window sashes and glass were broken, and the paper and plaster stripped from the walls. Other damage was done. It is thought that the young men committed the depredations while under the influence of liquor.

Residents of Indian Head who live in the vicinity of the Witt Cottage are indignant over the vandalism and in a letter to people here have given the names of the five young men implicated. All information on this matter is receiving prompt investigation and it is likely that prosecutions will follow.

"Judy" Kuhn, the champion chicken thief of Westmoreland county, who has a home here but prefers to live in the county jail, was hauled before Judge Orr at Greensburg Saturday. The judge was looking for "Judy" for he was one of the regular visitors. "Wool Judy" said Judge Dely, "I thought when I sentenced you before that you gave your reason for being before me that of wanting money to buy whisky. Now drinking whisky in my mind is a crime, but now you are here for both chicken stealing and drinking whisky. So I guess I will have to give you three months for each of three charges you are against me." Judy took his sentence good naturedly and seemed glad to be in jail once again.

Edward Rhinehart, formerly an employee for the H. C. Fickel Coke Company and who violated the mining laws several weeks ago, was fined $20 and costs by Judge Dely on Saturday. Rhinehart endangered the lives of 300 miners who were at work in the Standard mine when one night he went to work intoxicated and falling asleep let the large fan stop which supplies air to the miners. The discovery that the fan had stopped was not made for four hours. This fact led to the arrest of four fire bosses who it was found that they had neglected their duty for if they had went their rounds they would have discovered that the fan had stopped. It was with difficulty that the miners were all taken out safely. Work was delayed at the mines for half a day on account of this. The sentence of Rhinehart was considered very light.

THE SOISSON.

Jeffries-Johnson Fight Pictures
Referring to the Jeffries-Johnson fight pictures, which will appear at the Soisson theatre on the afternoon and evening of Tuesday, August 30, the Greensburg Review of Saturday says:

The famous fight pictures, those of the Jeffries-Johnson world championship taken at the ring side at Reno Nevada, a few weeks ago, were shown at the St. Clair theatre last night to an immense audience, a goodly number being women. The pictures were all that have been claimed for them, the genuine article, and so realistic that one really imagined that he stood by the ringside while the famous championship battle raged, or that they were unadorned though training quarters of the giant pugilists. There does not seem to be anything about the pictures to offend the viewer, however fastidious he or she may be, for it is simply a repetition of the world old boxing bout for prize, that will probably live for ages still.

At any rate the big audience fully enjoyed the pictures. Of course it was not so pleasant to see the black fellow to tower above the white man in matter of skill and strength, but as a general thing the American did not seem to mind the disappointment, and now they are only anxious to see just how the "coon" did the trick. The big crowd certainly enjoyed the show.

Greensburg is the second town in the state to get the fight pictures.

The first appearance of the films was in Pittsburgh last week, and the city went wild over them and the ladies turned out to see them as well as the men. Greensburg was next on the list of the hundreds of towns where the pictures are to be shown during the fall and winter. Mr. Taylor, who has charge of the valuable films, stated last night that fully 35 per cent of the attendance at Pittsburgh were ladies and they seem to enjoy the show.

Mr. Sears, who explains the situations in the pictures during the exhibition, was at the ringside during the famous fight. He is entertaining and fully describes the pictures.

ROOSEVELT AT DENVER TODAY.

City Has Prepared Fine Reception for the Colonel.

ADDRESSES COLORADO SOLONS

Teddy While at Cheyenne Could Not Resist Old Hanking for the Plains—Rides Twenty Miles Out to Senator Warren's Sheep Ranch.

Denver, Aug. 28.—Colonel Roosevelt arrived here about noon Denver has spread itself to give the ex-president a big reception. He will be kept on the move all day long. A monster parade will pass by for the colonel to review. When that is over he will eat a chuck wagon feed given by the Denver Press club.

This afternoon the colonel will address the Colorado legislature and will make his first speech.

The Spanish war veterans will rally and a dinner of formality will occupy Mr. Roosevelt this evening. The city is in holiday attire. Roosevelt was greeted with a twenty-one gun salute.

Takes Fifteen Mile Ride.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Aug. 28.—T. R. got a touch of the real west while here. The old hanking for the plains and the plains people with whom he spent several years before he broke into the political game seriously has been satisfied. He mounted a horse and rode twenty miles out to Senator Warren's sheep ranch. He ate a game dinner that included sage chickens brought over from Laramie. And he whooped whenever he felt like it. Formally did down.

Van Tassel Vigorous Old Man.

Lieutenant Tompkins, R. S. Van Tassel and Nat Baker, a ranchman, went with T. R. Senator Warren used an automobile. Van Tassel is seventy-five years old, a man of remarkable vitality, who years ago fought the Indians and nearly got scalped. He's a scrapper from way back. The colonel thought him impressive.

The party started out from Cheyenne under a sun that baked the plains. They followed the little horse creek stage road all the way out. The pace that old man Van Tassel set for the bunch caused the colonel to sit up and take notice, but T. R. stayed on the job and never wavered for a second. They had three cow ponies ready for him, using them as relays, because the colonel is heavy and keeps anything, whether it is human or animal, working steadily.

Out at Pole creek, northeast of Cheyenne, the colonel found many cowpunchers and range riders at twisters and prelers awaiting his arrival. He rode over the ranch with the crowd, saw them do a few stunts and then sat down to a big game dinner in the house. T. R. enjoyed the eats to beat the band. Everybody pitched in and helped themselves and got after the sage chickens and lamb and things voraciously.

Teddy Talks to the Cowboys.

After watching the numerous events put on the program for his entertainment Mr. Roosevelt made his speech at Cheyenne Saturday. He spoke of the old west, now fast passing away, and the men it developed. He told the people of the new west they must preserve those same characteristics if the nation is to endure. He urged them to be progressive and to remember that, whether he be in the east or west, every man must be a true American.

"It will be a bad day for the American—the end of America—if the average American loses the quality of being a dead game man," he said. "That caught the eye of the cowboys, who cheered him wildly."

The colonel also took occasion to whack the wrongdoer, rich or poor, which is now Teddy's one favorite subject. The crowd did not warm up to this part of the speech as did the railroad station audiences which the colonel addressed on his way to the west.

Roosevelt concluded his remarks by appealing to the men of the plains to raise a statue to the artist, Frederick Remington, in whose pictures, the colonel said, "all the most vivid and characteristic features of western life are set forth."

SISLEY AUDIT HELD OVER

Court Grants Defendant's Request to Postpone Hearing Until Sept. 13. Franklin, Pa., Aug. 28.—At the request of the attorneys for Joseph F. Sisley the audit of his $12,500 election expense account, scheduled to begin today, has been postponed until Tuesday, Sept. 13.

The attorneys for the petitioner for the audit fought hard against postponement, but Judge Criswell said nothing would be lost by a continuance and the audit would be facilitated because Sisley would be able to submit vouchers instead of calling witnesses. But while Sisley won a victory he will have a formidable bill of costs to pay, for the petitioner's counsel said it was too late to notify most of their witnesses of the postponement and there are hundreds of them subpoenaed. It is expected that the costs in the audit will amount to $5,000 or more.

CALLS MAYOR AN IMBECILE

Governor Harmon Also Declares Columbus People Are Cowards.

Akron, O., Aug. 28.—Declaring himself removed from the zone of Theodore Roosevelt's recent speeches in Ohio criticizing public officers for failure to put down rioting obviously addressed to the Columbus traction strike situation, Governor Harmon shifted the Rooseveltian criticism to the head of Mayor George S. Marshall of Columbus, incidentally directing a shaft of criticism at Roosevelt himself.

"The trouble in Columbus is that the police force is worthless, the mayor an imbecile and the people cowards," declared the governor.

FORGET DIFFERENCES.

President's Contribution to Republican Campaign Textbook.

New York, Aug. 28.—An urgent call for all Republicans to forget their differences after the nominations of their party have been made and to unite in trying to elect Republican nominees and thus insure the further carrying out of platform promises is made in the letter which President Taft has written for use in the Republican campaign textbook.

The letter, addressed to Chairman William B. McKinley of the Republican congressional committee, virtually takes the place of a party platform in the campaign for congress this fall, and it is evident the president intends it for such.

Only a brief and guarded reference is made to any factional strife within the party and that in the very beginning of the letter.

Only twice does the name of Mr. Taft's predecessor appear in his letter and that in reference to conservation. To Mr. Roosevelt Mr. Taft gives the credit for arousing public interest in this subject.

A large part of the letter is a summary of the legislation of the last session as evidence of desire to the Republican party to fulfill its promises. Among the measures yet to be enacted and for which he asks the return of a Republican majority Mr. Taft places the measure to curb the injunction power. He declares that the Democratic substitute "would create a privileged class of lawless workmen and would seriously impair the power of the courts of equity to do justice."

The regulation of stocks and bonds of railroads, a ship subsidy measure and a national board of health are other promises which remain to be kept, the president asserts. Those who wish for such legislation, in describing which Mr. Taft uses the word progressive, should vote for Republican candidates, Mr. Taft insists.

NIGHT BASEBALL A SUCCESS

20,000 Persons Witness Fine Game at Chicago.

Chicago, Aug. 28.—Electric light baseball played in Chicago for the first time proved a great success. Over 20,000 fans gathered at the new White Sox park and watched the Logan Squares wallops the Roger Park team, 3 to 0, and go through nine innings of excellent ball under the glare of twenty arc lights that made the diamond as bright as day.

It is expected arrangements will be made to have regular games at night.

GREATEST DEPOT

COMPLETE NOW.

Hundred Million Dollar New York Station Ready September 8.

TRAFFIC WILL BEGIN THEN

Structure is Largest in World Ever Built at One Time—Vatican, Winter Palace and Tulleries Larger But Took Centuries to Build.

The largest building in the world ever built at one time, the Pennsylvania railroad station in New York, has just been completed and declared officially open. It has also been announced in an official pamphlet distributed by the company that train service will be inaugurated Sept. 8. The pamphlet contains the first official history of the work which has been published. This history is furnished on two tablets which have been placed on the sides of the main entrance of the station on Seventh avenue.

The construction of the tunnel extension was begun June 10, 1903. The two tunnels under the North River and the four tunnels under the East River were built by shields driven from each side of the respective rivers and union was completed by the junction of the last tube on the following dates:

North River tunnels, Oct. 9, 1906.

East River tunnels, March 28, 1906.

These were the first tunnels for standard railroad trains constructed under these rivers. The construction of the New York station building was begun May 1, 1904.

According to the company's official statement, "The Pennsylvania station covers more territory than any other building ever constructed at one time in the history of the world. The Vatican, the Tulleries, the St. Petersburg Winter Palace, are larger buildings, but they have been centuries in their construction. The Pennsylvania station is unique, covering as it does eight acres of ground, with exterior walls extending approximately one-half of a mile, all told, and having been erected in less than six years' time."

"Built after the Roman Doric style of architecture, the New York station of the Pennsylvania railroad covers the entire area bounded by Seventh and Eighth avenues and Thirty-first and Thirty-third streets. The depth of the property on both streets is 750 feet, 11 1/2 inches, and the length of the building is 763 feet 2 inches, thus allowing for extra wide sidewalks on both side streets and avenues. The walls extend 410 feet 6 inches from Thirty-first to Thirty-third street, the Seventh Avenue facade signaling the main entrance."

"While the facades of the station were designed to suggest the imposing character of the ancient Roman temples and baths, the impression intended to be made upon the layman approaching the station in full view of the exterior general waiting room with its huge semi-circular windows, is that of one of the leading railway stations of the world."

"In designing the exterior of the building the architects were at pains to embody two ideas. To express in so far as was practicable, with the unusual condition of tracks below the street surface and in spite of the absence of the conventional train shed, not only the exterior design of a great railway station in the generally accepted form, but also to give to the building the character of a monumental gateway and entrance to a great metropolis."

"Apart from these two ideas, the plan of the station was designed to give the greatest amount of floor circulation. The structure is really a monumental bridge over the tracks, with entrances to the streets on the main axis and on all four sides. In this respect the building is unique among the railway stations of the world, affording the maximum of entrance and exit facilities."

"This Seventh Avenue facade was conceived especially to emphasize in most imposing fashion a monumental gateway. It may be compared, with due allowance for its more massive proportions, to the Brandenburg Gate in Berlin, through which pass so much of the traffic of that city. The central entrance on Seventh Avenue leads to the main waiting room through an arcade 235 feet long by 16 feet wide, flanked on both sides by shops. At the farther end of the arcade are the restaurants, lunch rooms and cafe, and beyond are the general waiting room and concourse, the latter being on the first level below the street."

"The main body of the building approximates in height the Bourse of Paris, reaching 75 feet above the street level. With entrances through the two corners of the station on Seventh Avenue there are carriage drives each about 65 feet wide, or almost twice the width of a standard New York City street."

"The main waiting room on the concourse level is the largest in the world. Within its walls are located the ticket office, baggage checking offices, so conveniently arranged that a passenger may proceed from one to the other with a minimum amount of exertion and without retracing his steps. Adjoining the general waiting room on the west side are waiting

PROBE OF EXPRESS CO'S.

120 Commercial Organizations Sign Petition; Allege Extortion.

New York, Aug. 28.—More than 120 commercial organizations, among them the Merchants' association of New York, the Boston chamber of commerce and the Chicago association of commerce have filed with the interstate commerce commission a petition asking an investigation of express rates, classifications, regulations and practices.

The petition sets forth that merchants have suffered for years from unjust charges by the express companies doing an interstate business. The allegation is made that the net returns to the companies have been out of all proportion to the service rendered and the capital invested.

To show that the enormous accumulations and dividends paid upon a small investment is due to extortion the case of one company is cited. This company was organized with a capital of $100,000 and only recently its property amounted to $71,000. On this investment the company has paid in ten years $3,200,000 in dividends and accumulated about $1,500,000. These dividends and accumulations, it is set forth, have come after paying to the railroad companies from 40 to 45 per cent of the gross earnings.

Elkins, W. Va., Aug. 28.—Henry G. Davis, who was a United States senator prior to 1884 and was a candidate for vice president on the Democratic ticket with Parker in 1904, is lying at his home here seriously ill. The greatest fears are expressed for his recovery.

Mr. Davis is father-in-law to United States Senator Stephen B. Elkins. Several days ago Mr. Davis fell down a flight of steps. At the time of the accident it was thought he had only been bruised, but due to his advanced age, eighty-seven, and the fact that he had been ailing for a considerable time the accident is more serious than at first thought.

The immediate family are in attendance at the bedside and several of the best physicians are in attendance.

ROUGHLY USED IN GERMANY

Philadelphia Woman School Teacher Placed in Insane Asylum.

Philadelphia, Aug. 28.—Miss Emma S. Hayes, a teacher at the Wharton school, who sailed abroad on July 15 for a vacation trip as a result of overwork, is back home after having been deported from Germany as an insane alien. She brings a tale of German governmental officialism so grim that it may result in some lively international correspondence before long.

Miss Hayes arrived at Hamburg showing traces of hysteria, which she says was due to the trials of the passage over. She was seized by the port officials, shut up in a sanitarium without the privilege of communicating with her friends or the American consular officials and with few but glimmering ideas for company. She was treated as an insane person for six weeks and at last, a week ago, was summarily deported and sent back to her starting point as an insane alien. Miss Hayes intends to bring the matter to the attention of the state department at Washington without delay.

The RING and the MAN

WITH SOME INCIDENTAL RELATION TO THE WOMAN
By CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY
Illustrations by DENBORN MELVILLE

"Mr. Gormly," said Haldane, "you this day addressed my daughter and asked her to be your wife?"

"I did, sir."

"Why today?"

"Because I intended all along to do so, and I preferred to do it now, rather than after the publication of the news that will be made tomorrow. I shall repeat my offer tomorrow."

"And you wish to marry her?"

"It is—the dearest wish of my heart."

"Yes, sir?"

"Yes, and so far as I am individually concerned it still remains so; but there are things higher than our own personal wishes, Mr. Haldane, as I have been finding out, and to be mayor of New York for the purpose of serving the people is now my chief ambition."

"But you love my daughter, I understood her to say."

"She could not possibly say how much I care for her, or how proud I should be to make her my wife."

"Mr. Gormly," said Haldane, lowering his voice and looking about him, "it is not beyond possibility that your desire in that direction might be gratified."

"Do you carry a message to me from Miss Haldane?"

"No, not exactly. She, however, placed the matter in my hands. I have your letter here." He drew it forth.

"And, in short, it is possible that she might be induced to favor your suit. Of course," he added very slowly in a mere whisper, during which he kept his eyes carefully averted from the other man's face, "you will understand that if you were a party to this—er—revelation to which you have alluded, that would render any alliance impossible."

"You say," asked Gormly slowly, "that Miss Haldane is not privy to your decision, that you do not make this proposition by her authority?"

"Certainly not. She knows nothing about it; but I am sure that with my wish and your own determined and ardent—most agreeable personality, the matter can be brought about. She has paused, significantly—on conditions," he added.

"What conditions?"

"I leave that to your own perspective."

"By the living God!" burst out Gormly, "throwing off all restraint in his indignation and resentment. 'If I treated you right, I would kick you out of the house. I would expose you not merely for your connection with that thieving octopus, but as a father who tried to barter his daughter to secure his own immunity.'"

"Sir, sir!" exclaimed Haldane furiously, but Gormly was not to be interrupted now.

"I love your daughter in ways that I doubt you are able to understand; but I would not take her on such conditions as those you mean me to infer; I would not degrade her by thinking of her on such terms, even if I lost her forever. I am unworthy of her now, God knows! but I would be so far beneath her under such circumstances that I could not even look at her again. I don't understand how she could have been born of such a father."

"I will not be talked to in that manner by you, sir," cried Haldane, who did not lack courage. "I here and now definitely decline your proposal for my daughter's hand."

"I will take that declaration from her, and from no one else!" said Gormly.

"She will repeat it, I am sure, if she hears with what insolence you have treated me."

"And I pray God for the sake of her love toward you and her respect toward you that she may never utter one word of what you have said. I have had enough of this interview, Mr. Haldane."

He turned to the door.

"Wait!" said Haldane.

"To hear another infamous proposition from you?"

"No, sir. But I have something more to say, and it is this: You are not so invulnerable yourself, sir, but that you might be glad for a little judicious silence."

"What do you mean?"

"Never mind what I mean. You publish what you have there at your peril! I warn you that in two days thereafter, your name will ring as a scandal and a blackguard throughout the United States."

"Having tried bribery and failed, you now resort to threats," said Gormly.

"But that you are her father—"

"He clenched his fist, stood staring a minute, then shrugged his shoulders, shook his head and turned away."

"You won't be warned, then?" said Haldane.

"Not by you."

"And you intend to publish my confession?"

"Everywhere."

"I shall tell Eleanor that you have done it."

"I shall tell her myself," returned Gormly, tearing open the door. "Haldane," he called, as he stepped into the hall. "When the young man presented himself, he thus addressed him: 'Your father and I have had a rather painful interview, into the details of which it is not necessary to enter. I have only to say that the story I told you goes to the newspaper tonight. And now,' he held out his hand, 'goodbye. I wish that we might have fought together until the end.'"

"But we are going to fight together until the end," cried the young man fiercely. "I love my father, and until now I have always respected him. I have been content to follow his lead; but I can do so no longer."

"You will both of you live to regret it," cried old Haldane after a bitter look at the pair. "With his head high he marched out through the door. 'Do your worst!' he said ere he closed it behind him. 'You will see what will happen to you in a day or two!'"

"What does it mean?" asked Miss Stewart.

"Mr. means," said Livingstone, "that my father is tangled up with a gang of scoundrels; that he is the brain and backbone of the Gotham Freight Traction company that we are fighting; and that he is in close alliance with the Schem society. It means that we—my family and I—are dishonored. It means that I no longer have the right to ask you what I had intended to ask you when the campaign was over and we had won, to be my wife."

"Are you asking me now?" cried Miss Stewart ecstatically.

"I would be if it were proper."

"It is proper," she said, blushing divinely.

"You don't mean—"

"You know!" said the girl. "I don't love your father or your family."

Here Gormly turned and went into the drawing room again. When he came back, which he did not do until summoned by Miss Stewart herself, he confronted the blushing pair.

"You could not have chosen a truer, better man than Mr. Haldane," he said. "And as for you, Haldane, you are the luckiest man on earth."

He sighed with envy and regret as he watched them.

"I want to do something for you now," said young Haldane.

"Well, there is one thing you can do for me."

"What is that?"

"I want to see your sister, and immediately."

"I will have her here in ten minutes," answered the young man, tearing himself away from Miss Stewart without another word.

CHAPTER XIV.

Gormly Resists His Greatest Temptation.

Gormly had faced many difficult situations in his life. Even his successful business career had confronted him with crises of moment. But he had never contemplated anything which imposed so hard a task upon his judgment and his feelings as the approaching interview. What means young Haldane would take to induce his sister to come with him, how much of what had transpired he would tell her, Gormly had no means of knowing of course; but he felt confident that by hook or crook the young woman would be produced, and that a few minutes would find him face to face with her.

He did not in the least know how to begin or what to say, and the more he thought of it the more difficult became the situation. It was well that the time for reflection was short. It is better for a man who has to do great things to do them before the mental and spiritual enemy has time to stall him in the labyrinth of his mind. And it was with a feeling of relief in his growing apprehension and misery, therefore, that he heard the front door open. He heard voices that he knew in the hall, and in another moment the library door was opened and Miss Haldane entered the room alone.

She had risen on her approach and stood confronting her. She was evidently greatly surprised.

"I did not know you were here," she began. "Livingstone did not tell me. I did not expect—"

"It was to see me, or rather that I might see you, that you were brought here, and I alone am responsible."

"You are a most extraordinary proceeding," said the girl fervently. "I can't imagine why I was brought to you."

"It was necessary for me to see you," returned the man.

"Then why didn't you come to my house?"

"I could not."

"Why not?"

"There are reasons which will probably render me forever an unwelcome visitor to your house."

"I believe," said the girl slowly, "that something very serious must have happened, or you would not have had me brought here."

"I can scarcely bear to tell you."

"You alarm me beyond measure!" cried the girl, pressing her hands to her breast as if to still its wild throbbing.

"You must not keep me in suspense any longer! What is it that you have to tell me? What is it that is likely to come between us?"

"This," responded Gormly, handing her a few typewritten sheets of paper.

"Am I to read this?" she asked, taking it from him and looking very straight at him.

He was very pale now and she was scarcely less white.

"Wait!" said the man, as she lifted the paper and bent her head. "Perhaps it would be more merciful to tell you."

"Just as you think best. I am a strong woman. I can bear anything. It is about—there was a long pause—"my father!"

He nodded his head.

"What has he done?"

"Miss Haldane," he began, "I say to you quite simply that I would rather be dead than stand here as I do now with the burden of telling you that your father is the head and front, the backbone, the brain, the genius, the everything, of the Gotham Freight company and the Schem society."

"My God!" exclaimed Miss Haldane, the paper dropping from her fingers to the floor.

She was paler than ever. She stared at him almost in dumb incomprehension. Her body swayed slightly. Gormly stepped closer to her, seized her gently, supported her to a chair by the library table. She put her face in her hands and rocked to and fro silently.

"It can't be true," she said at last.

"You are mistaken. Surely not my father in that sink of corruption and bribery and iniquity and shame! Say it isn't true!"

"I wish to heaven I could say it, but—"

"The man shook his head. 'I told you that I would rather have been dead than have brought this upon you.'"

"You are not to blame," answered the woman, her sense of justice uppermost. "It is the fact itself that kills. It is a fact. There must be some mistake."

"I wish there was."

"Are you sure absolutely?"

"Your father confessed it here in this room a half hour ago!"

"Why do you tell me of it?"

"Because," was the answer, "the whole world has to know it, and I preferred to tell you myself rather than let you get it from the newspapers."

"You are going to publish it?"

"Tomorrow morning."

"But why—"

She threw up her arms in nervous appeal.

"Think," said the man, "it is the one fact that makes my election certain."

"And does your ambition run to the wrecking of my father's good name in order that you may be elected?"

"No. If you will think, you will know that it does not. I am doing it for the sake of honor, for the sake of duty, for the sake of humanity, he paused and raised his own hand. 'So help me God!' he cried with upturned face."

"But is it necessary?"

"Absolutely."

"Why?"

"The cause of popular government is being fought out right here. The contest transcends in importance any political battle that has even been waged. If the government of our country is to be a success, we have to demonstrate it now or else go down. It may be forever. The people have a right to know what is back of the Schem society, where it gets its enormous corruption fund. I should be a traitor, false to my duty, a betrayer, if I did not make public this knowledge that has come to me."

"It is all true," she said at last.

"You say my father was here?"

"Yes."

"He was very much agitated at

And This Is Why You Made Me That Offer of Marriage?

"There is no way out of it," said the girl quickly.

"No, I suppose not." He turned away from her and began to pace the room with long steady steps.

"Mr. Gormly," she said at last, "come here. Sit down there on the other side of the table. I want to see you."

Amazed, the man complied with her request.

"Now tell me the whole solemn truth. You say my father was here with you before I came?"

"Yes."

"Does he know that you know?"

"It was to see me about that that he came."

"Did he make some effort to induce you not to publish this fact?"

"Naturally."

"What was the effort?"

"He argued with me."

"Is that all?"

"He threatened retaliation."

"Is that all?"

"I think he even pleaded."

"And in that?"

"Yes," said Gormly, telling her his first lie, telling it bravely, audaciously, even looking her straight in the eye without blinking.

"Mr. Gormly," returned the woman, "whatever he is, my father is not a fool."

"His worst enemy would not so describe him."

"He knew that you were not a man who could be moved by threats or entreaties. You have demonstrated that you can be, in this campaign at least, iron hard, inflexible, immovable. And there is no argument that any mortal man could use which could induce you to hold your hand. Isn't that true?"

"I am afraid so."

"What then he did propose to influence you?"

"Great heaven," cried Gormly, "I have told you all that I will tell you; all that you have a right to know! Suffice it to say that he did not move me."

"Mr. Gormly, I ask you, I implore you, I adjure you, did my father offer me to buy your silence?"

Gormly stared at her in ghastly horror.

"You don't answer," said Miss Haldane.

"No."

"Stop! You are on oath now, by your honor as a gentleman, by your belief in God, by your faith in womanhood, by your love for me! I want the truth. Indeed, it is almost unnecessary for you to speak. Your silence, everything, confirms me in that belief. A man who would do what he has done would not hesitate at that. But I must know, and I must have your answer."

"And I can't tell you."

"You can."

"Well, I won't then. I have told you enough. Anything else you must get from other people."

"BACK TO THE FARM"

XVI.—What Co-operation Is Doing For the Farmer.

By C. V. GREGORY.

(Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.)

OUTSIDE of education, the greatest force which is working for the uplift of the farmer is co-operation. Co-operation is bringing the farmers together, teaching them to think and act and work in unison. It is enabling them to market their products more efficiently and at least expense. Co-operation seems to be the only logical means of reducing the great army of non-producing middlemen.

There are many sections of the United States where co-operation is working successfully. One of the striking instances of successful co-operation is that grain elevator business of the middle west. The idea of co-operative buying and selling had long been talked of among farmers, but it was not until 1890 that the first successful organization for this purpose was established. This was located at Rockwell, Ill., and was known as the Rockwell Co-operative Elevator company. The conditions in the grain trade at this time and even up to within the last half decade were such that the farmer was held up unmercifully. There were two classes of elevators—the line companies and the independents. Nearly all of these were banded together in the form of state associations. In several states the officers of these state associations fixed prices arbitrarily, sending out price cards to the members every morning. These were based more upon the competition in the locality than upon the market demand for grain. Finally most of the competition was done away with, except in form by pooling combinations. The different elevators in a town paid various rates to keep up a show of competition, and at the end of each month the profits were divided. Thus it made no particular difference which elevator did the business.

It was to escape such cutthroat methods that the Rockwell Co-operative association was organized. From all sides advice poured in upon the organizers of the new company. They were told that the place for the farmer was in his fields and that business would better be left to business men. The farmers went doggedly ahead. They had inserted a protection clause in the constitution which compelled each of their members to pay the association one-fourth of a cent for each bushel of grain sold to a rival concern. When the line company offered more than the farmers were able to pay they got the grain. But the one-fourth of a cent a bushel was turned into the treasury of the farmers' company to pay expenses.

Since that time the co-operative idea has spread throughout the middle western states until nearly every town has its co-operative elevator. There are at present nearly a thousand co-operative elevator companies in the middle west. They do a business aggregating hundreds of millions of dollars a year. They do it at cost to the farmers. So far this co-operative elevator movement has helped the farmer in only one indirect way. When the grain reaches the markets it is turned over to the terminal elevators. Here it is past the farmer's control. The rest of the way to the consumer is through the same cumbersome, expensive system from which the farmers escaped by co-operation. One big leak comes in the lack of federal inspection at these markets. Low grade grain comes in and high grade grain comes out. The consumer pays the bill, and the terminal elevator men grow fat on the proceeds.

It is but a question of time until co-operative companies will handle the grain from the time it leaves the grower until it reaches the consumer. When a system like this is put into working order and the discriminatory freight rates that favor the large cities are done away with the problem of getting the products from producer to consumer at least expense will be solved. When an eastern feeder or miller wants a car of corn he can have it hauled direct from a co-operative association in Kansas. It will go through no expensive terminals, and expensive loading and unloading will be done away with.

The system of co-operation which has been worked out by the most progressive of the farmers' elevator companies insures to the farmers every cent that their grain is worth. The manager buys as close to the market as he can with safety. At the close of the year any accumulated profits are divided among the members of the association in proportion to the business they have done. The aggregate saving that has come to farmers through these co-operative associations can hardly be estimated.

This saving has enabled the farmers to build better houses and improve their farms. It has brought them together and developed a community spirit. Co-operation has been extended to other things. The elevator companies usually handle coal, flour, lumber, etc. They are coming to handle wagons and farm machinery. Co-operative creameries have been organized throughout all the dairy districts of the country. These have been able to compete successfully with centralized plants, and the competition has compelled the centralizers to keep prices up. Even then the co-operative creameries handle most of the cream from their territory. A typical co-operative creamery in eastern Iowa may be taken as an example of the value of these creameries to the farmers. This creamery saves about $6,000 each year to its patrons.

The fruit growers of Michigan and California have been very successful in co-operative marketing. The conditions which led up to this were much the same as those in the grain belt before co-operation came to the rescue.

In the live stock industry co-operation is a comparatively new thing, but already it is accomplishing results. Two years ago the woolgrowers of Wyoming formed a co-operative wool storage company. Large warehouses were built to hold the product, and instead of all being dumped on the market at once it was sold gradually, and the usual break in the market was avoided. By this means more than a million dollars were saved to the Wyoming woolgrowers in one year.

The Corn Belt Meat Producers' association has in mind the establishment of a co-operative packing house. This is a practical way of bringing the beef trust to terms and will be a thousand times more effective than all the meat inspectors ever devised.

In many more ways co-operation is helping the farmer to market his products. Co-operation has never failed except when it has tried to limit production and force up prices artificially, as has been the case at times in the tobacco and cotton districts of the south. But this is not true co-operation. It is monopoly, and it is better that it should fail. True co-operation seeks rather to increase production than to limit it. It makes its profits by cutting down the expense of marketing rather than by raising prices above their normal level. Natural conditions of supply and demand, if not interfered with by trusts and combinations, can be depended upon to regulate prices so that they will be fair to both producer and consumer.

Co-operation is also solving the money problem for farmers. Pennsylvania has a number of successful co-operative banks. In the middle west many such institutions are doing a successful business. These banks are safe, for they are usually backed by all the assets of the farmer stockholders. They are run on business principles.

One other great problem confronts the farmers in this country which co-operation has solved in Germany. That is the problem of landownership. A permanent, prosperous agriculture is possible only where the majority of the farmers own the land they cultivate. The proportion of tenant farmers in the United States is steadily increasing. From 25 per cent in 1880 it increased to 36 per cent in 1900. The 1910 census will show in all probability that nearly half the farms in the United States are worked by tenants. Germany has solved this problem by co-operative loan associations which include all the farmers in a community, and the entire assets of the community are pledged to the company as security. On this security the company borrows large sums of money at very low rates of interest. This money is used to purchase land for members upon approval of the board of directors. The farmer who borrows money from the association can buy it back in easy payments extending over a period of forty years or so. He is charged a quarter of a cent more interest than the association pays. This quarter of a cent is used to pay expenses and to provide a sinking fund to cover losses. It has always been amply sufficient for these purposes.

Under this plan the farmer can buy land by making annual payments that amount to little more than the rent. Tenancy in Germany has been decreasing ever since this plan went into operation.

Play off the game.

Important games will be played this week in the Central Frick League.
The Blinn team arranged at the eleventh hour to play off the tie game with Trotter tomorrow afternoon at Blinn, preferring this to Superintendent Tormay's plan for a double header at Trotter. This game was made possible by the fact that Trotter and Leisnering will not play their regularly scheduled game until some time next week.

This is a strenuous week for Lemont and Duto. This evening Duto goes to Lemont, tomorrow Lemont is at Morgan, Wednesday Davidson goes to Duto, Thursday both teams lay off and Friday Lemont goes to Duto to play off a tie.

Blinn hopes to climb through the medium of this week's schedule. Blinn meets Trotter on Tuesday and Thursday and Duto on Friday. Davidson winds up its season with games against Monarch and Duto. Superintendent Deorbover hopes to end the season with a pair of victories.

The Morgan team wants to challenge Leisnering for a series of three games at the close of the regular season for $50 to the side. If Leisnering wins the game, which seems likely the team can fill about a month of playing dates with title claimants.

Captain Richard Barry of the Leis-nering team is requested to get in touch with this office as soon as possible. It is important.

The Morgan team has posted its fortuitous $25. This boys had to get the money themselves and after much difficulty finally secured it. The Morthe ninth. Curry, first man up slugged to center. Chambers hit to Everson's second station master who fumbled.

J. Goodwin went out on an infield fly.
Curry scored when the sphere was

DECISION CAUSES FATAL RIOT

Negro Baseball Players Fight; Three Dead, Others Dying.

Brooklyn, N.Y., Aug. 29.—A ball game between negro clubs for the championship of Fayette county broke up in a riot in the ninth inning and as a result three ball players are dead, three probably fatally injured and several less seriously hurt.
Pistons, knives and baseball bats were used in the riot. Scores of spectators took sides with the rival teams.
The trouble was caused by a close decision of Umpire Smith, which allowed the Brooklyn team to score the winning run. Although nearly all the fighting raged about the umpire he escaped without serious injury.

VICTOR REUNION.

100 members and friends of the year the Victor family hold their re-

next year will be held at McKeesport.
The day was delightfully spent and at noon an elaborate dinner was ser-daughter, Miss Ora, of Connelville; Mrs. Elmer Meyer of Mt. Pleasant.

HID PEARLS IN HER HAT LINING.

Wealthy American Woman
Nipped by Customs Officials.

JEWELRY IS WORTH $6,000

Mrs. J. R. Adriance, Wife of Poughkeepsie (N. Y.), Bank President, Stoutly Maintained She Had No
Pearls.

New York, Aug. 29.—The declaration of Mrs. J. R. Reynolds Adriance, wife of a Poughkeepsie bank president, who arrived from abroad with her daughter, Marion, and her son,
John P. Adriance, aboard the White Star liner Battle, was a model of par-ticularity. "All memoranda of sales were attached to every dutiable article and Mrs. Adriance answered the inquiries of the customs men with grace, charm and coolness that might have been more impressive if the treasury department had not received information that she had bought a pearl necklace in Italy worth about $6,000.

As to the pearls Mrs. Adriance stoutly maintained that she had brought no dutiable jewelry back with her. The customs officials, however, though different and Mrs. Adriance was subjected to a most careful search by a female inspector. No jewelry was found and the officials were stumped, but they refused to allow the traveler to go.

Husband Protests.

Mr. Adriance, who had been protesting vigorously at the "outrageous" treatment of his wife, was told that there was positive evidence that his wife had smuggled into port pearls worth $6,000. He was advised to urge his wife to make a clean breast of it if she expected to get away with them. He told the customs officials that he kept on the pier until the pearls were forthcoming.

Mr. Adriance and his wife went aside and after a few minutes of very earnest conversation Mr. Adriance came back and remarked:

"My wife has the necklace."
Mrs. Adriance, still unsmiling, said that she could not give it up on the pier and that she must be alone. She locked the stateroom door just as inspectors got there. Mrs. Adriance was ripping open the lining of her big blue straw hat and pearls were patting on the floor. They had been stuffed inside the hollow circular stiffening piece forming the top of the lining of the hat.

Mrs. Adriance might have been arrested as a smuggler but she was released in the custody of her husband.
